

Office of the Board of Education Student Directors' Report February 10, 2010

Our current and most important project is our Quality Teaching project, which we are carrying out through surveying classes, and committing the results back to the teachers.

The goals of our project are to build positive student and teacher relationships, and to increase students attendance.

- The objectives for these surveys are to give teachers valuable student feedback
- To promote constructive student teacher dialogue,
- To empower students to evaluate their learning experience, and
- To motivate students to participate more in class

The structure for accomplishing these objectives is

1. Student feedback for Teacher Survey – to be completed by students
2. Teacher self evaluation survey – to be completed by the teacher
3. Student – Teacher Feedback Session – Teacher will receive survey results and students will lead student teacher dialogue
4. Teacher Modeling Session – teacher will model lesson plan based on feedback, for student observation and feedback
