Statement of Qualifications Childcare Garden Program

The Childcare Garden Program has built and currently serves 66 gardens across Alameda County, and builds between 10-18 new gardens each year.

This program empowers childcare centers in underprivileged communities to plant, tend and harvest their own fruits and vegetables. Participants receive a garden installed in their yard, and two years of gardening mentorship. There is no charge to participate. The Childcare Garden program is part of City Slicker Farms' Backyard Garden program. Gardens from this program collectively produce 25,000 – 30,000 lbs. of food annually.

The goal of this program is to expose families and children to nutrition education, outdoor activities, and increase their consumption of fresh, nutritious foods. City Slicker Farms provides garden-based curriculum to engage young children in the topics of nutrition and healthy diet.

City Slicker Farms' staff members gather with parents and children from the childcare center to build a garden using materials that the organization provides. Childcare Gardeners then receive two years of gardening mentorship from our Childcare Garden Coordinator, who visits each garden quarterly to provide technical assistance that is tailored for each site (e.g. harvesting, cooking tips, composting, and organic gardening practices). During quarterly mentor visits we also deliver needed supplies (e.g., soil, compost, seedlings). Garden installation and mentoring activities take place from February through November, with outreach occurring simultaneously throughout the year. Once a year we convene all new participants for training in City Slicker Farms' garden-based curriculum designed to benefit children with hands-on educational exercises about nutrition and healthy eating habits.
