The Need

Both the school's self analysis and the District's School Quality Review report revealed a need for increased support to develop and implement Dewey-specific academic discussion instructional strategies in all classrooms. In addition to supporting students in 21 century learning and Common Core expectations, these instructional strategies need to be:

- tailored to Dewey's unique student population (many of whom have interrupted schooling before and during students' enrollment at Dewey),
- few enough that they can be implemented in all classrooms and all subject areas (regular day and afterschool) without reducing teachers' creative exploration of their subject matter,
- simple enough that students can learn and practice them quickly as they enter throughout the year
- explicitly supportive of Dewey's big goals for students – to graduate from high school with the self-management and communication skills to successfully navigate the adult world of post graduate study, work, civic engagement, and life in a diverse community.

Outcomes

- Regular Academic and After School Program teaching staff will have a common understanding of what, why, and how of academic discussion, as it relates to the Common Core and to Dewey's specific big goals for students.
- Shared, explicit set of Academic Discussion practices will be seen in all classrooms, across the two bodies of teachers (regular academic and after school program) and all subject areas.
- Monthly PD sessions (1st Wednesdays) will follow a coherent, intentional arc focused on improving academic discussion, anchored by 2-3 key protocols.
