program goals and objectives

Our goals and objectives for our Arts-Integrated Professional Development Program include:

- Teachers will gain familiarity with engaging, educational art activities that help children hone important academic and developmental skills
- Teachers will develop effective, arts-based strategies for presenting curriculum that has multiple entry points into the learning process
- Teachers will increasingly recognize opportunities to use the arts to leverage learning in other curriculum areas and to use other curriculum areas to leverage learning in the arts
- Teachers will develop a comfort level with the tools, media, and skills necessary to teach visual literacy and/or to be able to use a teaching artist as a more effective resource
- Teachers will learn appropriate ways to talk to children about their art making and to ask questions that foster reflection and cognitive development
- Throughout the Oakland Unified School District, Alameda County and the East Bay we will help build a community that recognizes the importance of, implements and advocates for arts learning as a vital educational tool that can be employed across the curriculum
- MOCHA teaching artists will have ongoing opportunities to enhance their existing skills and develop new skills for teaching art, integrating art across curriculum areas and working effectively in classroom and afterschool settings

Arts Learning Anchor School Collaboration: MOCHA will continue its work with teachers in schools participating in OUSD's Arts Learning Anchor School program. Arts Learning Anchor Schools are committed to arts-integrated learning as an essential part of overall school curriculum, and MOCHA provides professional development, coaching and classroom modeling to support that integrated approach. We will deepen our relationship with the staff at these schools so that we can assess which professional development strategies will be most successful at each site in developing teachers that can use the arts effectively in their classroom practice.

Schoolwide Professional Development: Our programs include professional development for classroom teachers in arts-integrated learning and inquiry, the development of an arts framework for a general curriculum approach known as Teaching for Understanding, and a short-term artist residency to model arts-integrated approaches to math and language arts curriculum. MOCHA artists model lessons during the school day and, with the classroom teacher, develop arts-integrated curriculum to support inschool learning.

expected results

The goal of MOCHA's Arts-Integrated Professional Development Program is to create internally sustainable arts education programs in school and community settings by building the practical skills, theoretical vocabulary, and evaluation tools that integrate the arts into education and youth development programs. MOCHA evaluates program success through educator and student outcomes. Evaluation instruments include:

4. Alignment with Single Plan for Student Achievement (required if using State or Federal Funds)

Please select:

Action Item included in Board Approved SPSA (no additional documentation required) – Action Item Number:

Action Item added as modification to Board Approved SPSA – Submit the following documents to the Resource Manager either electronically via email of scanned documents, fax or drop off.

1. Relevant page of SPSA with action item highlighted. Page must include header with the word "Modified", modification date, school site name, both principal and school site council chair initials and date.

2. Meeting announcement for meeting in which the SPSA modification was approved.

3. Minutes for meeting in which the SPSA modification was approved of the modification.

4. Sign-in sheet for meeting in which the SPSA modification was approved.

Educator outcomes: MOCHA gauges whether educators are learning the tools, vocabulary, and methods of arts integration and whether these skills are being applied to both art curricula and general curricula. MOCHA assesses educator work and progress by observing educators in class settings, reviewing development and delivery of lesson plans, and guiding educator self-evaluation. MOCHA's school-based professional development programs incorporate designated time to meet with classroom teachers to assess the skills and tools they need to improve classroom practice in utilizing art. These assessments are followed up with lesson modeling and coaching tailored to the learning goals and needs of the individual teachers.

Student outcomes: MOCHA gauges the following: Are students able to demonstrate mastery of visual literacy as defined by state Visual and Performing Arts Content Standards? Can students use visual art skills to demonstrate mastery of core curriculum? For our younger students, what logical indicators demonstrate the role of the arts in establishing pre-literacy and school readiness skills through the development of hand-eye coordination, fine and gross motor skills, and perceptual discrimination? How well can students demonstrate their knowledge and abilities using visual art vocabulary? How does the visual arts vocabulary help students articulate what they are learning? In what ways do the students' use of visual arts vocabulary and articulation about the artistic process enable their teacher to determine the next steps in teaching/lesson planning? MOCHA assesses student work and progress as they relate to teachers' professional development by observing students in class and student participation in exhibitions, as well as reviewing student work and portfolios.

MOCHA: Statement of Qualifications

The mission of the Museum of Children's Art (MOCHA) is to ensure that the arts are a fundamental part of the lives of all children. A nonprofit agency founded in Oakland, California in 1988, MOCHA serves children ages 18 months to 18 years and encourages hands-on learning in the arts; advocates for the arts as an essential part of childhood education; and promotes the arts as a critical tool in helping children of all backgrounds develop as healthy, resourceful, and involved citizens. MOCHA also engages parents and teachers in approaches and strategies for involving children in the arts in ways that are educational and enjoyable.

MOCHA has five program focus areas: Artists in the Schools, in which MOCHA's highly trained Teaching Artists bring innovative arts-learning experiences to classrooms and afterschool programs; Early Childhood Programs, in which our Little Artists onsite and outreach programs support young children's cognitive, physical, social and emotional growth, building a strong foundation for successful school transition; Community Programs, which engaged 10,000 youth in interactive art-making activities at public libraries, in public housing, and at Dia de los Muertos, Art & Soul, International Children and Youth Day, and other community festivals and events throughout Oakland and the East Bay; Professional Development Programs, in which MOCHA Teaching Artists provide workshops, coaching and mentoring to help teachers integrate art into core subject areas; and Museum Programs at MOCHA's downtown Oakland gallery and studios, which reached nearly 9,000 students through daily drop-in art programs and monthly Family Extravaganzas, school field trips, holiday and summer art camps, and the Little Studio, a specially designed space for children ages 18 months to 5 years. MOCHA is also the only Bay Area museum exclusively exhibiting artwork by and for children.

MOCHA emphasizes outreach to children from low-income families and in communities that do not typically have wide access to the arts. Of the more than 35,000 children who participated in our programs last year, over half came from low-income families and over 60% participated in programs free of charge. Eighty percent of our artist residencies take place in schools with predominantly low-income populations, and the majority of our community programs are held in underserved communities.

MOCHA's work straddles the fields of arts education, youth development and school reform, and our program delivery is based upon the research and best practices of all three. MOCHA has been recognized both locally and nationally for our program excellence, and has established a reputation for quality, sustainability and dedication. In 2003, MOCHA was awarded the national Coming Up Taller Award from the President's Committee on the Arts and the Humanities. That same year, The Oakland Chamber of Commerce honored MOCHA as Oakland's Outstanding Arts Organization.
