Organization

Community Initiative's fiscally sponsored project, Media Enterprise Alliance (MEA), provides underserved high school students in Oakland the opportunity to study media, particularly video, graphic design, and website production with the goals of staying engaged in school, acquiring art and technical skills, and developing criteria for college admission and job placement.

History

MEA was established as a fiscally sponsored project of Community Initiatives in 2009, through the joint efforts of Jeff Key, Executive Director, Mario Capitelli, Manager KDOL-TV, Oakland Unified School District (OUSD) staff and administration, and an alliance of community partners.

The Program

MEA delivers a highly structured, yearlong media arts program in its state-of-the-art Educational-Access Television Station, KDOL, where students form close relationships with successful mentors in employable fields.

While working with media arts professionals to produce informational films for non-profits advocating social justice, and features for television news magazines, students are exposed first-hand to community problems and become an active part of the solutions.

Through a project-based media curriculum and job training program developed and led by mentors from UC Berkeley's Graduate Schools of Journalism and Business, 60+ youth will complete the program this year and pass a basic course completion proficiency exam that qualifies students for OUSD academic credit, satisfies the UC "I" Fine Arts requirement, and articulates with Laney College for Community College credit.

Population Served

MEA serves OUSD high school students that reflect the racial/ethnic population of Oakland and our OUSD partners. Students currently enrolled in the MEA Video Production classes come to the program from ten high schools representing almost every neighborhood throughout the city of Oakland. Schools sites are selected based on low-income and at-risk students. 95% of MEA's schools serve this population and are designated Title 1.

Community Partners

East Bay alliance partners providing mentorship to MEA students include the Center for Young Entrepreneurs at Haas (YEAH) School of Business-UC Berkeley, the UC Berkeley Graduate School of Journalism, the California College of the Arts Center for Art and Public Life, Children's Hospital-Oakland's CHAMPS program, the Public Health Institute's FACES for the Future program, and Pandora Internet Radio.

Awards

MEA student-produced films have won distinguished awards from the Adobe Foundation/PBS, Project Youth View, The Northern California Chapter of The National Academy of Television Arts and Sciences-2012 and 2013 Regional Student Television Awards for Excellence, KQED Science Award for Excellence; and from the PBS Student Reporting Labs for Best Science Video.
