MOCHA: Statement of Qualifications

The mission of the Museum of Children's Art (MOCHA) is to ensure that the arts are a fundamental part of the lives of all children. A nonprofit agency founded in Oakland, California in 1988, MOCHA serves children ages 18 months to 18 years and encourages hands-on learning in the arts; advocates for the arts as an essential part of childhood education; and promotes the arts as a critical tool in helping children of all backgrounds develop as healthy, resourceful, and involved citizens. MOCHA also engages parents and teachers in approaches and strategies for involving children in the arts in ways that are educational and enjoyable.

MOCHA has five program focus areas: Artists in the Schools, in which MOCHA's highly trained Teaching Artists bring innovative arts-learning experiences to classrooms and afterschool programs; Early Childhood Programs, in which our Little Artists onsite and outreach programs support young children's cognitive, physical, social and emotional growth, building a strong foundation for successful school transition; Community Programs, which engaged 10,000 youth in interactive art-making activities at public libraries, in public housing, and at Dia de los Muertos, Art & Soul, International Children and Youth Day, and other community festivals and events throughout Oakland and the East Bay; Professional Development Programs, in which MOCHA Teaching Artists provide workshops, coaching and mentoring to help teachers integrate art into core subject areas; and Museum Programs at MOCHA's downtown Oakland gallery and studios, which reached nearly 9,000 students through daily drop-in art programs and monthly Family Extravaganzas, school field trips, holiday and summer art camps, and the Little Studio, a specially designed space for children ages 18 months to 5 years. MOCHA is also the only Bay Area museum exclusively exhibiting artwork by and for children.

MOCHA emphasizes outreach to children from low-income families and in communities that do not typically have wide access to the arts. Of the more than 35,000 children who participated in our programs last year, over half came from low-income families and over 60% participated in programs free of charge. Eighty percent of our artist residencies take place in schools with predominantly low-income populations, and the majority of our community programs are held in underserved communities.

MOCHA's work straddles the fields of arts education, youth development and school reform, and our program delivery is based upon the research and best practices of all three. MOCHA has been recognized both locally and nationally for our program excellence, and has established a reputation for quality, sustainability and dedication. In 2003, MOCHA was awarded the national Coming Up Taller Award from the President's Committee on the Arts and the Humanities. That same year, The Oakland Chamber of Commerce honored MOCHA as Oakland's Outstanding Arts Organization.
